3. QUICK RACE Q'S ANSWERED

- When can I pick up my race bag and stuff? All race logistics will be covered in the next, and last, pre-race newsletter; the runners instructions. It will include everything you'll need to know about the race and probably more than you want to know. SO.....if I get an email from you the day before the race asking "what time is the race," I may not answer. If you're going to read anything, read the next newsletter. It'll be sent out early in May. As for bag pick-up, noon to 5pm at the farm on Saturday May 6th and pre-race Sunday, the 7th/
- How many port-o-lets are there? We'll have 26 on the farm and one at each aid station, except for the Camp Playland aid station. There have been no irritating port-o-lets lines for the last few years.
- Why is the race closed after 1,200 runners is reached? We only have so much room for parking, and with the narrow Redding roads (especially the farm road), we don't want it too cramped. Plus, selling out in a couple of hours is nice for the ego!!
- What type of food/beverages will be available? Pre-race, on the farm there will be bagels and donuts from Uncle Leo's, cookies and muffins from Sharon (former New Pond Farm Board President), Bananas, apples and oranges from Trader Joes, coffee and hot chocolate from Redding Roasters, and Gatorade and water. During the race you'll find Gatorade and water at every aid station, sliced oranges at one aid station and candy and soda at the Topstone aid station (you'll pass this one twice on the out and back into the park). Post-race, there will be Pizza from Lombardi's (some of which is Gluten free), Some Vegan food, chocolate milk from New Pond Farm, and the aforementioned items.
- What is the Sponge Zone? This is at the top of Topstone Park where ice cold sponges are handed out, if you want to cool off your face.
- How many aid stations will I pass? For Halfers, you will pass 8 aid stations; for 7 milers, 4.
- Are the hills bad? Singularly no, collectively yes. If you're not in good shape you will be reminded of it during this race. None of the hills are all that long, but, they take a toll. Remember no whining as you paid for this (I have proof!!)

- What is the victory lap on the farm? The start of the race is a half mile, or so, loop of the farm road where you can get cheered on by the farm spectators. Halfers go clockwise, 7 milers counterclockwise. Most of it is on farm roads of small stones – not ideal, but not bad. Part of it is on grass and your feet may get damp – again, no whining, see above.
- How many police are on the course? There will be 8 Redding and 5 Danbury Policemen. Every corner you turn on will be manned by an officer. You'll likely see more police cars on the course than civilian cars.
- Are headphones allowed? Dogs? Baby strollers? Yes on the headphones (just keep the volume at a low enough level to hear cars). No to dogs, yes to strollers (just be courteous)
- How does Bag check/bag drop work? In case you just can't make it back to your car (which is probably 50 feet away from bag pick up and the start), we have a baggage drop under the big tent. We'll give you a clear drawstring bag and a label to leave your stuff (and hopefully pick it up after the race). In case you want to strip off some clothing as the race starts you'll have two options: Drop the clothes in or near the bin near the starting line or drop the clothes in the bin at the FIRST aid station. All clothes not retrieved after the race will be donated to a shelter, unless it's a particularly nice piece of men's large clothing, which will be donated to my closet.
- Is there a time limit to the race? Nope – if you're still out there, we will wait for you. We do recommend for any halfers who are going to finish in 2:30+ to take advantage of the 7:15 early start, so you can't partake in the post-race festivities to the fullest.
- Remember to read the Runner Instructions being sent out in a couple of weeks for more detailed instructions.

4. ROCK'N ROOTS 9K REGISTRATION NOW OPEN

WHEN: Saturday, July 1, 2017, 8AM

WHERE: Redding Historical Society, Redding, CT

WHY: The third of my Redding races and maybe the most fun (especially for me since I get to run in it). We run through both sides of Putnam Park, where some of George Washington's troops were stationed in 1778-1779 during the American Revolutionary War. So, you're literally running through history in Putnam Park as you run down Company Street where 116 soldier huts were once located. We put the race together in a month last year and it had as many runners as any other area 4th of July race. It's also the only race I know that gives runners a choice of a singlet or short sleeve shirt. Admission to the all-day Rock'n Roots Festival (including fireworks) is included with registration ($15 value). Oh, did I mention the re-enactors along the course!! Race closes at 750 runners – we're well on the way!!

REGISTRATION: <https://www.raceit.com/Register/?event=39986>

Huge 4" medal this year, my favorite ever.

Race capacity this year is 750, so register before it's too late!!

5. BILL RODGERS: MARATHON MAN

Bill is offering his Signed Book for $28 and his signed “relentless” poster for $20. Email me if you’re interested in either/both and I’ll tell you how to pay and reserve your BR memorabilia.

6. PRE-RACE FESTIVITIES AND PASTA DINNER

Not a ton happens in Redding throughout the year (it's kind of the way we like it). In saying that, a lot does seem to be happening on race weekend. More details to follow when everything is finalized, but, a good Saturday plan could include a short run with the Redding Running Club, picking up your race bag at the expo, going to Putnam Park to check out its history and carbing up at the Boy Scout Pasta Dinner (only $10 and 2/10ths of a mile from New Pond Farm).

7. LA QUINTA, OUR HOST HOTEL

La Quinta Inn & Suites in Danbury, CT (approx. 5 miles away from New Pond Farm) has been chosen as our HOST HOTEL for this event. They are ranked #1 on Trip Advisor and are offering a discounted rate when you mention "Redding Road Race." They will also be extending this special rate a day prior and after the event. Enjoy their FREE Continental Brightside Breakfast each morning and grab a bite at Outback Steakhouse located in the hotel. For those staying for the race, they are offering a FREE PASTA meal to help you carb up the day before the event! This includes: salad, pasta, rolls, and unlimited water. (1 meal ticket per room) For reservations, call 203-798-1200 and ask for the "Redding Road Race rate." Be sure to request a late checkout if necessary!

8. PACE TEAM FOR THE HALF MARATHON

We're always trying to make this race a better experience, so, we're excited to announce that, once again, we have Beast Pacing leading our runners to goal times. I like to say that if you set a PR (personal record) on this course then congratulations on finishing your first half marathon, BUT, if you have a time in mind (from 1:40 to 3:00 in 10-15 minute increments) hook up with a pace runner and let him or her lead the way.

9. NEWBIE CHRONICAL – BOB A.

Hey everyone! We're three weeks out, are you getting excited?! I sure am! It's pretty incredible to realize that three months of training has already passed and in two weeks I'll be completing my first taper, carb load, etc. I'm still posting about my training on Instagram, so check it out @bobazud. And as usual, feel free to shoot an email at bobazud@yahoo.com.

Sooo...I missed our last email newsletter two weeks ago as life started to get a bit crazy as it usually does for my family in late-March. My training suffered a bit, and for two straight weeks my weekly total was only 13 miles. Thankfully, I quickly turned this around and ramped back up to my normal training volume of 40-45 miles per week. This past week was my best ever, culminating in 49 miles! I also experienced a fairly tough workout this week, which began with 2 miles warm-up and 7 miles at my half-marathon training pace, which is 9:25/mi, something I haven't done as of yet. I felt great after this run, but it was sure a challenge at first. My final long run is this Friday and my final HMTP run is the following Friday, with the usual 40-45 miles/week over the next two weeks. The forecast is looking good so far, so as I've done the last few weeks, I plan on continuing to keep my training outdoors.

Another positive in my training has been joining the Woodbridge Running Club in Brookfield, CT. They meet twice a week, on Wednesdays and Saturday for a 5 mile run in Brookfield. I've now joined them twice and it's been a great experience. On top of meeting great people and running in a group, I've also found new areas to run that are a bit flatter than my many hills in my neighborhood, along with running the Still River Greenway which is very close to this route and absolutely gorgeous. If you haven't checked this area out I highly recommend it!

I'm also going to be trying a few new things with nutrition this week, specifically some samples of Isagenix products that an Instagram friend has recommended. I'll admit that my nutrition during and after my longer runs isn't that great currently, so I'm looking forward to using some real hydration and refueling products that will hopefully have a positive effect on my runs. I'm also planning on keeping a fairly strict diet over the next few weeks to maybe drop a few more pounds and hopefully improve my pace a bit. I'm still researching my taper week, including what I'll be eating in the few days leading up to the race, so feel free to email me if you have any nutrition ideas!

Oh, and one more thing, any advice on how to actually eat something while running? I'd say this is harder for me than the actual running!

Best of luck to all of you over these next few weeks of training, we're almost there! Like I always say, it's tough, but not tougher than us, cheers!

10. RUNNER STORY - CEREN

Reaping the rewards because it's all downhill from there

When I signed up for the seven miler I offered to write a personal story. With every email I received I promised myself I would send my story. I had a great piece but I couldn't send it. I don't know why, but I couldn't hit send. So here I am about to pour my heart out because I realize that maybe there is someone else out there who may just feel the same way I am and as running is cathartic to others writing is to me.

Running is a lifestyle. A lifestyle that I haven't quite figured out how to live. Diet, exercise, time and the mental strength and determination are all something I have struggled with. I always seem to get on a roll and something gets in my way. Illnesses, work, the extreme stress of a parental illness, or the recent passing of a brother. I admit, I fell off the smoking wagon and then there were times I just flat out couldn't find the energy to get out there.

I am also my own worst nightmare, I don't run well, I am by far a natural runner and I can't even walk in straight line. I am overweight, not by choice but with Crohn's there is no way I can control my weight, for me fatter is a good sign and thin means I'm out of remission. So I always put the smile on my face and haul my 200 pounds out there in the quest to be healthy.

See, I started running last year when my sister Cathy (a Mighty Cow runner) heard I tried to quit smoking. I have had a lot of health challenges to overcome. Besides Crohn's disease I've also had a breathing issue, and dietary restrictions to work with to properly fuel my body. Big issues, but that was last year's human interest story.

As I go out to train I look at the faces of people who are running and I noticed that some look like a 30 mile run is nothing more than a walk around the block. I mumble to myself really? And keep going.

Then there are the people who look like me after two blocks dragging and dying and we smile the biggest smiles because we know how hard it is but we are proud of each other for hauling it out there and not giving up. We thumbs up each other as we pass by each other.

Do I dare mention the perky little college student who bounces by with the perfect little outfit, oh come on, we all know the one... after running by you on the trails for the umpteenth time she looks like she walked off the magazine cover, Or the college guy who runs by with such force that the sound of his shoes makes your heart jump with leg muscles that look like something Michelangelo carved.

Then there is me, I'm the unhealthy healthy wannabe who knows I will never win a race, worries that I will be the last to come and make people who want to close up shop and go home wait for me to come in but still wants to finish, even if it is a half a minute less than the year before but knows circumstances can prevent it and I could be two hours past my time but didn't let that stop me from trying.

Outside forces are tough for me. I am always the one to say yes to everyone and puts myself second. So, I found for a while that going to the gym and trying to run were no longer enjoyable, it was a job. I didn't want to disappoint my sister and that added extra pressure on me and when I would have bad training day I would hate to go the next time for fear it would be worse. Sometimes it was but sometimes it wasn't. But I keep trying. If I make it a block or a mile. I keep trying.

When my brother passed I said to my mother "you're like a rock". She told me that everyday past the age of 12 was a blessing to have had him with us and we had 55 beautiful years. I never looked at it that way, he was just my big brother. I wasn't there for all the hard work when he was first born. I didn't come around until 5 ½ years later. I reaped the rewards of my parents hard work when I was young, and I picked it up when I got old enough, but by that time it was natural to me and I took it in stride.

So, next time the college kid runs by me with muscular legs, yes, I am going to wonder if my flabby thighs will ever pretend to have those muscles, and that perky college kid bounces by me, I'm gonna wonder where she got that cute outfit and wonder if they make it big enough for me. When the runner who makes it look like a walk in the park... oh heck, let me honest, you're not human are you? Could you please pretend to sweat and pour some water over your head to make me feel better?

What I missed in all of this "running" stress is, I forgot the fun. I forgot the reward for the hard work. I forgot that when the big hill is in front of me, and I am once again walking to the top, this year I will be singing “Put one foot in front of the other, and soon you’ll be walking cross the floor. Put one foot in front of the other And soon you’ll be walking out the door.....”.

Because let's face it, life is short, it's the journey we are all on, it's the fun, and once you hit that hill... it's literally all downhill from there.

11. RUNNER STORY – ALLISON

My Facebook profile might look cute - Runner Chick - with a little chick-y. But there is a wealth of meaning behind it. Let me rewind to 2005. My husband and I were house hunting in Bethel and ended up finding a cute salt box cape in a little neighborhood right near downtown. We moved in and literally shared a driveway with the neighbors - a nice couple, Debbi and Peter, a dozen years or so older with pre-teen kids. We got to know them and turns out we had a lot in common despite our difference in ages. Food, books, games, etc. we'd just hang out with them on their porch and be neighborly. Debbi had Multiple Sclerosis though. And - at the time - I worked for the MS Society as a fundraiser - it put a face on that disease for me and how she gracefully dealt with the slow deterioration of her movement and ability to put one foot in front of the other. Slowly, Debbi couldn't quite keep up with our croquet tournaments on the lawn. She had some scary relapses over the years and eventually in 2014 they decided to move to a condo more accessible for her.

During this time my husband and I had kids, and I traded one hobby (tennis) for another (running). I found it much easier to lace up and jog down the street whenever I could squeeze in the time (sometimes pushing a jogging stroller). Deb, as my kids called her by this point, was a constant next door. We'd see her pull in the driveway, get out with her walker, and try her hardest to get her groceries in the door. My son would run over, pull like heck at the heaviest bags, and help our neighbor. We always do Christmas with the neighbors. Rather than exchange presents as a group we'd do a "funny" gift exchange. We've had everything from pink flamingos to stale pizza in the exchange. One year I was behind in my funny gift finding and luckily at the bookstore downtown I saw something that would work - magnets with chicks on them - chick magnets! Christmas comes and we sit down to do funny presents. Debbi gets mine and opens it, looks, and then sort of puts it aside. Her kids, home from college, start laughing, hahahaha chick magnets, funny, get it Mom/Debbi? Straight faced Debbi say - yes - I get it - but it's not funny. Which of course makes it funnier. She never lived that Christmas down.

After Debbi and her husband moved all the way to Brookfield (yes not far but not the same as being next door) we saw them less often - but still more than anyone else in our daily lives. They were involved in the town and schools, Peter being one of the track coaches and their architecture office right downtown. I'd see Debbi often when I would go for runs through town and see her car so I'd stop in to the office to chat. I remember clearly on October 26, 2015 I stopped in mid-run to say Happy Birthday since that was her birthday - I knew I had a present for her at home but couldn't resist surprising her. She was so happy to see me but I could also tell something was wrong. She told me that there had been some tests since she wasn't feeling quite right and there may be some spots on her liver. They were going to do more tests but since it was her birthday (59!) she put them off and would have them later that week. That pit sort of forms in your stomach when you hear bad news and stays there. Well - into November and many tests later - Debbi was diagnosed with pancreatic cancer.

Here was a woman living with one debilitating disease for 20+ years and now she's diagnosed with cancer? And one of the worst cancers with the lowest life expectancy? This wasn't fair. Debbi fought cancer like everything else she tackled in her life - with grace. That year we had our funny Christmas present exchange again - she again got my present - this time I had more success (The Ha Ha Moustache game - it was awesome!) Friends and neighbors came over to our house and I can't believe how many people played gathered - of course to spend time with Debbi. January she seemed a bit slower and fell asleep literally next to me during the Super Bowl. February she traveled to Los Angeles to see her daughter run the LA Marathon and qualify for Boston. All this time feeling the effects of the cancer. Into March of last year she started showing what we suspected were cancer symptoms. At Easter (which we brought to her up in Brookfield at the condo) we could tell she wasn't eating well, she was tied to the pills and vitamin routine that she was keeping up, and was just tired. One weekend she had an episode that forced her into the hospital. From the hospital she went to Bethel Rehab and her family spent literally the month of April at her bedside. Cancer was winning.

I knew that I wanted and needed to do something. So late in April, knowing I'd be doing the Redding Road Race for a third time, I set a challenge to raise money in Debbi's honor for our Bethel Relay for Life. I'd kick off six weeks of running at least 25 miles a week in the best way possible - on May 1st with the half marathon. I also wanted to pay homage to the friendship I had with Debbi and with a funny play on the chick magnets, I ended up with my Runner Chick emblem. We made shirts (pink of course - one for me, one for her daughter and one for mine) and the challenge was set. The last week in April Debbi was moved to the hospice in Danbury. We knew that the end was coming. The shirts were delivered and on Saturday April 30 I went to see Debbi in hospice to show her the shirt and let her know I was ready for my 150 miles. She wasn't really awake and was in a lot of pain but I did get a little laugh and smile from her.

The next day dawned wet and nasty - and I still had that 13.1 to run. I had wardrobe issues. The pink tank top seemed fine when thinking a May half would be warm and sunny. So I layered. I told my husband to just let me run - if anything happened to Debbi while I was out on the course just don't tell me until after. If any of you ran last year you know how wet and horrible it was! I stuck with it and PR'd in 2:07 (after some malfunctions with the chip because of the wetness... that's another story). We let Debbi know through her family and I was set to continue the six week challenge - 13.1 done for the week only 11.9 to go...

I'd like to say the day after the race was perfect. It wasn't Debbi passed away peacefully on Monday May 2, 2016. I like to think that she waited to not ruin my race. I know it was her time. And I had work to do. Each week for the next 6 I ran. I ran for her, I ran to raise funds for Relay, I ran for my family as a way to connect, but I ran for me. It was my alone time where I could process what had happened. I finished those six weeks and 150 miles. And have kept going. For my friend and neighbor who couldn't keep going any longer.

This year's Redding Road Race is a week before a Ragnar I'm doing with friends. They thought I was crazy to sign up for the half again but I just need to. So look for me in the pink shirt and give me some encouragement. This is for Debbi. I'm her Runner Chick.
